

EH3201: Introduction to Christian Ethics – Dr. John Lee
Thursday, 8:05 – 10:00pm; 3 credits
Hybrid; Online option for VA and PA residents

DESCRIPTION: Introduction to Christian Ethics examines ethics from a Christian philosophical, theological, and biblical perspective. Can Christians offer an account of ethics that would speak to humanity in general? If so, what would this look like – an account that's grounded in our understanding of God and ourselves as created in the image of God? And would this general account also satisfy an ethics for the church? If not, what other features must be considered according to the New Testament and our discipleship to Jesus Christ?

SIGNIFICANCE FOR LIFE AND MINISTRY: Ethical questions and issues of justice are all around us. How should we respond? What perspectives can we offer to our church communities and to the public square? How are we to contribute constructively to the current moral questions and crises? If the church is to speak and witness positively to a world that's created and loved by God, what would such speaking and witnessing look like with respect to ethics?

LEARNING OUTCOMES: Through the successful completion of this course a student will be able to:

- Understand ethics and justice from a theologically and biblically grounded perspective.
- Articulate for oneself and for one's community what "Christian Ethics" means and entails.
- Examine and write on an ethical topic that engages either the public at large or the Christian community.
